

Saint Francis taught that everything was holy. He said everything had a little piece of God in it. Whether it was an animal, a plant, a person, or a place, Francis said the Holy Spirit was in it all. It is difficult for me to pick one moment of the pilgrimage that is the most holy because, like Francis said, it was all holy. Every minute of our trip to Italy was wonderful, life changing, and holy. It was a journey unlike any other, and it strengthened a bond between nine teenagers that will never be broken.

If I have to choose the moment that was most holy for me, there is one moment that sticks out in my mind. We went to the Greccio Monastery one day to witness the place Francis held the first live nativity scene. While we were there, we discovered a trail. As we hiked this trail that went on for much longer than we did, we knew that if there was ever a space between the trees, we would see a view like none other. Sure enough, a break in the trees came, and accompanying it was the most beautiful view I have ever seen. In the distance we saw ski slopes atop beautiful mountains. A little closer to us was a small lake. The small town of Greccio could also be seen, along with all the farmland and countryside one can imagine. If I am ever asked what I think heaven looks like, I will describe that view. Everything was so beautiful, so holy. Our pilgrimage, Italy, and the wonderful view were all pieces of heaven. For a little while, we were all in the Kingdom of God. The Kingdom found us while we were in Italy, and now we find it here.

Italy into words is hard to do. The experience its self is hard to describe and explain to anyone who did not attend. But for those who have asked, all I can say is, incredible. The people, locations, history, and experience all together is something that will always been in my heart. La Verna was a place that really stood out to the majority of us, including myself. For most where St. Francis received his stigmata, or the location of his room was special. Standing on the rocks where St. Francis fought with the devil, which over looked fields filled with small farms, houses, and yellow flowers was my favorite place. I miss being in Italy with everyone everyday, and it is something that I will continue to love hold on too for the rest of my life.

Haley Hart

It is near impossible to tell someone about my pilgrimage, to truly tell them. A pilgrimage is something someone has to feel and to experience to completely understand. This pilgrimage meant many things to me. First, it was about connecting to our history as Christians; following in the footsteps of our Saints and Apostles, but it also meant much more for me.

This was also a pilgrimage to my heritage. My mother's family comes from Catanzaro in the Calabria region of Italy, and this was my first trip back to the land of my grandfather. But most importantly, this was a pilgrimage to find myself, and to connect with my friends and peers. My greatest and most memorable experience on my trip was not the Vatican, or Assisi, or David, but rather when we, the pilgrims, would stay up, and just talk. I can truly say that we, Anna, Haley, Anna, Jay, Sam, Rob, Andrew, Chris, and I, will always be bound by this trip, emotionally and spiritually. I have learned more about my friends on this week long trip than I had in previous years combined. We would stay up till the wee hours of the morning talking about God, religion, philosophy, science, theology, our life goals, and our true feelings and emotions. This is the memory I most cherish when I look back on this wonderful trip around the world, not the glories of Rome or memories of monasteries, but just a couple of kids sitting around a hotel room, talking.
